To whom it may concern,

Birkdale State School recently participated in a trial programme to test the performance of a piece of equipment designed by Anti-Bio to improve swimming pool water quality. I write to voice my praise of the "gizmo".

Over the period of the trial, I have found that the school's swimming pool has been more economical to run. Chlorine use is down by 1300 litres, the quantities of other chemicals used are also down, filter backwashing times have been reduced by 50% and the amount of minor maintenance (i.e. removing calcium buildup from around injection points) is negligible. Overall, the amount of time that I have had to spend working on the pool has been reduced by 1.5 to 2 hours per week. There has also been a noticeable improvement in the stability of the chemistry of the swimming pool, in that there has been a smaller daily fluctuation in chlorine levels and both alkalinity and hardness levels have been very stable. In other words, the whole system appears to be running more efficiently and effectively.

Yours sincerely,
