

To Whom it May Concern,

We installed the CellarControl system in 2007, and have found it to be a great addition to our cellar room.

The system has given us substantial savings in beer wastage, chemical costs and labour. Although I have not calculated the exact savings, we have indeed saved more than the cost of the system.

The system has maintained the high quality of beer we expect for our venue over the three years, with servicing being completed by Hunter Technologies technicians. It should also be noted that the beer lines are still in great condition.

The system has since been implemented on our other venue in the CBD of Canberra, and I would recommend the system to any venue interested in save time and money while ensuring a great quality beer.
